

New Quora or TikTok Fully Powered by AI Translation

- A new TikTok or Quora fully powered by AI translation.
- Similar to X, Threads, Instagram, WhatsApp, Facebook, LinkedIn, Reddit, YouTube.
- These platforms, which already have international subdomains, are most in need of such features due to their large international user base.
- Every post or answer created by users can be saved in a single language. To simplify, it should use the platform's default language. Before submission, the system translates content into that language, or users can edit the content at any time.
- Platforms will automatically translate content into 20 languages.
- AI tools will issue warnings for naming translations, as names are often difficult to translate correctly. In edge cases, it should warn users or allow for human correction.
- Users can view content in their preferred language.
- Text in images and audio in videos can also be translated. The EzDubs bot in X is a step toward this future.
- Zoom or Teams meetings should also support translation, with translation speed being crucial in these settings.
